THE PROBLEM OF UNEMPLOYMENT

The problem of unemployment. I venture to submit so far as the educated classes are concerned, cannot be solved without reorganizing our entire system of education so as to produce not merely men of culture but the practical-minded men who can become useful economic units of the nation. Side by side with this and indispensable accompaniment of educational reform we have actually to provide more careers for the educated young men to establish modern lines of college industries, to absorb those possessing technique scientific and practical knowledge in large-scale industries to open other avenues of work.

While I realise the growing importance of vocational education and industrial training. I also feel that even education and such training themselves cannot solve the problem unless each province assumes responsible for developing those wealth producing activities which alone can find employment for our young men. If I may be permitted to quote from the report with which I was associated. There cannot be one single remedy which can solve the question of unemployment, nor can it be solved immediately, but I think that if it is attacked systematically on a well-conceived plan with the resources available to government great deal of relief can be given to the unemployed among the educated.

While, if governments are prepared to spend more money on the development of the resources of the country reorganising the entire system of education and on encouraging and fostering the true spirit of industrialization a great deal more may be done.

I think the time has come when our Provincial Governments. Who under the new constitution will be concerned with unemployment should definitely recognize the importance and the urgency of the problem and also the danger of postponing the solution or the danger of proceeding at a leisurely pace.

Such steps as have hitherto been taken by governments only touch the fringe of the problem and at times I feel as if there is not that keen and close appreciation of it, which in these days, we are entitled to expect and demand from Governments.

I agree with the point of view that the success or failure of the new Governments which are to come into being in the provinces within the next few months, will be measured by their ability or inability to face and cope with our economic problems. I do not forget that we have got to work in the midst of imperfect conditions and with such tolls as we can command.

I do not however believe the paralyzing doctrine that we can do nothing to relieve unemployment or economic distress generally until the dream of a new order of society has been realized. It is pleasant to think of the church of the future the commonwealth of the future and the society of the future, but the essential and the immediate problem of consideration should be how to harmonise this tempting idea with the actual condition of human life in our country.

I may therefore hope that whatever may divide your future legislators, they will all be united in taking this very practical problem in a practical spirit. I think the problem is big enough in all its ramifications to engage the attention of a whole time Minister and in any case. I sincerely hope that it will not be relegated to a subordinate position in the department work of the Government.
