

LSAT SYLLABUS 2024

The syllabus of the exam is designed mainly to measure the thinking skills and not in-depth knowledge of any particular subject, cramming facts, mathematical formulae and other General Knowledge subjects.

Analytical Reasoning Questions: These questions relate to ability to understand the structure of relationships and to draw logical conclusions about these structures. You are required to reason with provable set of rules and principles that describe relationships among persons, things or events. This section includes questions of complete analyses that a law student is expected to perform during the course of legal problem solving.

Logical Reasoning Questions: This section is a test of your ability to analyse, evaluate and complete arguments in the most ordinary and understandable language (layman terms). Questions in this section are comprehension based is that is reading the passage and answering questions related to the same.

However these question are designed to understand how well you think critically and also in the legal context of affairs. The skills required for this section include drawing well supported conclusions, reasoning by analogy, determining how additional evidence affects an argument, applying rules and principles and also identifying flaws in argument.

Reading Comprehension Questions: The questions in this section test your ability to read, understand and insight complex material similar to those encountered in law school. This Reading comprehension section contains four sets of reading questions that include reading material followed by four to nine questions that test reading and reasoning abilities.
